

Ashley Campbell

Ms. Campbell is a graduate of the State University of New York, Cobleskill where she received her B.T. in Animal Science in 2011. As a student there, she studied many aspects of agriculture including: small and large animal science, animal behavior, veterinary science, plant science as well as agricultural business. She was a member of the campus veterinary science club, as well as continued to work on her family's small farm in Connecticut.

Ms. Campbell then received her M.A. in Curriculum and Instruction, with a concentration in Agricultural Education from the University of Connecticut in 2012. Before coming to Stamford Public Schools, Ms. Campbell has taught Agricultural Science in both a public and private school setting. For the past two and half years she has taught in a state approved special education school; working with a diverse group of students with varying disabilities. While teaching, Ms. Campbell returned to school and received a M.A. in Special Education from Southern Connecticut State University.
