

Name: Jasmine Padilla
Hometown: Norwalk, CT
Year of Graduation: 2011
Current School: Pennsylvania State University
Major: Veterinary and Biomedical Science

The Stamford Agricultural Science Program has prepared me more than I could ever imagined. Being an alumna of the program has made my first two years of college a breeze with all the leadership, time management, and organization skills I learned in my four years of being an active member. Not only has it improved my skills in the classroom, but also has generated a network of connections to multiple organizations, students and faculty members. Still to this day I look back at what I accomplished in the program and am thankful for what it has done to prepare me for my future career goals.